PRINTABLE ITINERARY

A 3-Day Paris Brunch Itinerary

From our guide Top 10 Best Brunch Spots in Paris. Print it or save it to your phone.

These plans use only places from this guide. Book where you can, and keep a backup nearby.

Day 1: Canal and Oberkampf

Start with the pancake stack at Holybelly, arriving early to avoid the queue. Walk along the Canal Saint-Martin and browse the shops around. In the afternoon, take the metro to Oberkampf for coffee at Café Méricourt and a stroll through the streets nearby. Keep the evening free.

Day 2: Montmartre and the Marais

Go to Hardware Société for a Montmartre brunch, then walk up to the Sacré-Cœur and through the lanes behind it. Have a light lunch if you are still hungry, then take the metro to the Marais. Finish with a healthy bowl or a late coffee at Season Marais, and walk to the Place des Vosges.

Day 3: A French breakfast and a Left Bank Sunday

Begin at Claus near the Palais-Royal for a French breakfast set, then walk through the gardens and arcades. Travel to Saint-Germain for a special Sunday brunch at Ralph's, booked in advance. If you prefer something quieter, choose Treize au Jardin and walk into the Luxembourg Gardens afterwards.

The 10 places at a glance

1. Holybelly

How to get there: Metro to Jacques Bonsergent or Gare de l'Est, then a short walk; the canal is nearby.
How long to spend: One to one and a half hours, plus any queue.
Best time to go: A weekday, or early on a weekend, before the rush.
Tip: Go with a flexible plan; queues at peak weekend times can be long.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

2. Hardware Société

How to get there: Metro to Château Rouge, then a short uphill walk; or Lamarck-Caulaincourt on line 12.
How long to spend: One to one and a half hours.
Best time to go: Weekday late morning or early weekend.
Tip: Check the opening days first; listings suggest it is closed on some weekdays, usually Tuesday and Wednesday.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

3. Claus

How to get there: Metro to Louvre-Rivoli or Palais-Royal, then a short walk.
How long to spend: One to one and a half hours.
Best time to go: Weekday morning, or early at the weekend.
Tip: Book if you can, as it is popular with visitors and locals alike.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

4. Café Méricourt

How to get there: Metro to Parmentier or Oberkampf, then a short walk.
How long to spend: One to one and a half hours.
Best time to go: Weekday late morning, or a booked weekend slot.
Tip: Use the online booking if it is available, to avoid queuing.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

5. Loulou Montmartre

How to get there: Metro to Anvers or Abbesses, then a walk uphill; the funicular is an option.
How long to spend: One and a half to two hours.
Best time to go: Weekend late morning, with a booking.
Tip: Book ahead at weekends and check the current menu.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

6. Café Albert

How to get there: Metro to Jules Joffrin, then a short walk.
How long to spend: One to one and a half hours.
Best time to go: Weekend late morning with a booking.
Tip: Check the menu and booking page, as brunch details may change.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

7. Treize au Jardin

How to get there: Metro to Odéon, or RER B to Luxembourg, then a short walk.
How long to spend: One to one and a half hours.
Best time to go: Weekday late morning, then a walk in the gardens.
Tip: Plan to visit the Luxembourg Gardens afterwards; they are directly across the road.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

8. Ralph's

How to get there: Metro to Saint-Germain-des-Prés or Mabillon, then a short walk.
How long to spend: Two hours.
Best time to go: A Sunday in good weather, with a reservation.
Tip: Reserve through the official channels and ask for the courtyard.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

9. Season Marais

How to get there: Metro to Filles du Calvaire or Temple, then a short walk.
How long to spend: One hour.
Best time to go: Weekday late morning.
Tip: Ask about dietary options; the menu leans healthy but can change.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

10. Le Bellerive

How to get there: Metro to Riquet, then a short walk to the quay.
How long to spend: One and a half to two hours.
Best time to go: A Sunday, with a walk along the canal afterwards.
Tip: Check the current brunch menu and book a table on Sundays.
Read more | Open in Google Maps

Getting around Paris

The metro is the quickest way to reach most brunch spots, and many are a short walk from a station. Buy tickets or passes through the official transport operator, and check the RATP website for current tickets and routes. Montmartre is hilly, and the funicular is an option. Walking between the Marais, the Palais-Royal and Saint-Germain is pleasant in good weather. Watch for pickpockets on busy lines and at tourist sites.

Opening times, prices and transport change often, so check with each venue or operator before you go. For the full guide, photos and FAQs, see https://toptravelinsider.com/top-10-best-brunch-spots-in-paris/.